CHARGE I.

On or about August 30, 2007, while employed as a Licensed Vocational Nurse with Gregg Home for the Aged, Kilgore, Texas, Respondent verbally abused Resident T.A., in that she made her cry when she told her to get up off the floor after she had fallen out of her chair, even though Resident T.A. was unable to get up by herself. Additionally, Respondent told the resident that she would call her doctor to have her discharged because she was a drug addict and that she would call the police to have her room searched for drugs. Respondent's conduct was likely to injure the resident in that her threatening behavior exposed the resident to emotional abuse.

The above action constitutes grounds for disciplinary action in accordance with Section 301.452(b)(10)&(13), Texas Occupations Code, and is a violation of 22 TEX. ADMIN. CODE §217.11(1)(B), and 22 TEX. ADMIN. CODE §217.12(1)(B),(4),(6)(C)&(F).

ADMINISTRATIVE HEARINGS

PROPOSAL FOR DECISION

The staff of the Board of Vocational Nurse Examiners (Staff) sought to discipline a licensee for misappropriating the property of a patient. The Staff recommended revocation of the license. This proposal agrees with the Staff's recommendation.

I. JURISDICTION AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

There are no contested issues of notice or jurisdiction in this proceeding. Therefore, these matters are set out in the proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law without further discussion here.

The hearing in this matter was held July 21, 1997, at the Hearings Facility of the State Office of Administrative Hearings, 1700 N. Congress, Suite 1100, Austin, Texas, with Administrative Law Judge Ann Landeros presiding. Lynn Bey-Roode, Assistant Attorney General, represented Staff. Glenda Sue Dunn (Respondent) appeared pro se. The hearing concluded that same day.

II. DISCUSSION

A. Applicable Statutory Provisions.

Pursuant to §10(a)(1) of the Vocational Nurse Act (Act), TEX. REV. CIV. STAT. ANN. art. 4528c, the Board may suspend or revoke the license of any practitioner of vocational nursing for violation of the Act, or of any Board rule, regulation or order. The sworn complaint against Respondent was filed with the Board in accordance with §10(d) of the Act.

B. Evidence.

1. Respondent Used A Patient's Check as Collateral

Respondent is a vocational nurse licensed by the State of Texas, and holds license number 120339. From August 1987 through August 1995, Respondent was employed as a vocational nurse at the Highland Pine Nursing Center (HPNC) in Longview, Texas. In August 1995, Respondent resigned from HPNC. Prior to her resignation, Respondent had been investigated by the HPNC administration regarding her role in passing of a personal check taken from Ann Bruner, a HPNC resident. Respondent was suspended without pay during the investigation. Although the check's signature proved to be forged, no criminal charges were filed.

In March 1995, Respondent's Lincoln automobile was taken to Arden's Garage for repairs. Garage owner Steve Arden testified that Respondent gave him a check written on Ann Bruner's account in the amount of $640.00 dollars. Although he knew Respondent worked at HPNC, he did not know Mrs. Bruner was a HPNC resident because the check had her home address on it. Respondent explained that Mrs. Bruner was someone she took care of and asked him not to cash the check, but to hold it as collateral. Because someone in HPNC administration had guaranteed repairs on Respondent's car the previous year, Mr. Arden agreed to this arrangement, and released the repaired vehicle to Respondent. She promised to pay the bill the following week. Respondent returned the following week and paid him $300.00 dollars cash, leaving a $304.00 dollar balance. She promised to pay the balance soon.

Over the next several weeks, Respondent and Mr. Arden spoke on various occasions about the balance. Mr. Arden continued to hold the check. Respondent told him her son's illness prevented her from paying the bill. After a few weeks, Respondent told Mr. Arden her son had died. Wishing to send flowers, Mr. Arden's spouse called HPNC to inquire about funeral arrangements and was told no one knew anything about a death in Respondent's family.

On June 2, 1996, Mr. Arden decided to cash the check. Since the bank upon which Mrs. Bruner's check was written was also Mr. Arden's bank, he asked that the amount owed him, three hundred and four dollars, be deposited in his account and the balance of the proceeds be deposited in Mrs. Bruner's account. Mr. Arden sent a note to Mrs. Bruner explaining why he had cashed the check and that the balance had been deposited to her account. After the forgery was discovered, the bank debited his account for three hundred and four dollars. Mr. Arden has never recovered the balance owed him on Respondent's car repair.

All the handwritten words on the check were in the same handwriting. The handwriting on the check did not match Mrs. Bruner's handwriting. The notation at the bottom of the check read: "Loan for car." While helping her mother in May 1995, Ruby Usery discovered the returned forged check and reported the forgery to HPNC management. Mrs. Bruner testified that she neither gave nor lent Respondent any money to pay for Respondent's car repair. She did not give any funds directly to Arden's garage to pay for the repairs. Respondent never asked Mrs. Bruner for a loan nor did she inquire about Mrs. Bruner's checkbook.

When asked by HPNC's assistant administrator Bonnie DeShazo about the check, Respondent stated Mrs. Bruner had given her the check. Respondent admitted to Ms. DeShazo that she used the check as collateral at Arden's garage, but denied ever intending to negotiate the check.

2. Respondent's Conspiracy Theory Lacked Plausibility

In her defense, Respondent presented her uncorroborated testimony that her former employer orchestrated an elaborate conspiracy, involving several people and impersonations or misidentifications of people and property, which resulted in the forgery accusation against her. As proof that no crime took place, she emphasized the lack of a police report, a criminal charge, or a handwriting analysis. Respondent failed to present plausible evidence to support her theory of the case.

According to Respondent, as retaliation for her cooperation with state investigators looking into misdeeds at HPNC, her former employer conspired with various employees and Steve Arden to frame her for passing the forged check. Respondent told the state investigators that she had refused to rewrite nurse's notes or forge patient records as requested by her HPNC supervisors who were trying to cover up mistakes. She claimed her whistleblower activities resulted in the state fining and threatening to close HPNC in early 1995. Respondent claimed after her cooperation with the state became known, her supervisors began reprimanding her without justification. Although Respondent at first implied she had received no reprimands prior to the whistleblower activities, she admitted to reprimands in 1991, 1992, and 1993 when confronted with her employment records. Bonnie DeShazo corroborated Respondent's testimony as to HPNC's problems with the state. However, there was no credible evidence to support Respondent's theory that HPNC management conspired to have her falsely accused of using Mrs. Bruner's check as collateral.

HPNC management had a liberal policy regarding making loans to employees in the form of salary advances. Respondent claimed to have gotten such loans in the past. She had been allowed to use a company vehicle to travel to and from work. In 1994, she got tired of driving the company car, and asked that HPNC pay to have her personal car, the Lincoln, repaired. She admitted that Arden's Garage repaired her Lincoln in 1994. Later in 1994, Respondent got another vehicle. After first implying she no longer possessed the Lincoln in March 1995, on closer questioning Respondent admitted that in 1995 she still owned, but no longer drove, the Lincoln. She claimed the Lincoln remained parked in her yard during March 1995, either because it was not street-legal or not operable. Respondent denied taking the Lincoln to Arden's garage in March 1995. She implied that Steve Arden mistook someone else for her and misidentified her vehicle.

Respondent argued that she had no reason to take Mrs. Bruner's check because HPNC's owner, the person whom she accused of organizing the conspiracy against her, would loan her money at any time. She also accused various HPNC employees of participating in the conspiracy, including one person who had written a good character reference for her. She implied the employees had access to Mrs. Bruner's checks because, at an unspecified time, she had seen these employees running in and out of Mrs. Bruner's room. She believed Steve Arden willingly conspired against her because he was a distant relative of HPNC's owner.

Respondent emphasized that no police report had been made or criminal charges filed. She equated lack of a police report with lack of wrongdoing, reasoning that without a police report, the forgery could not be proven. She pointed out that no handwriting analysis had been done on the forgery. HPNC and Mrs. Bruner believed that only Arden's garage had standing to file criminal charges. Steve Arden testified his family decided not to pursue the matter criminally because the amount of money was relatively small, because he had exercised poor judgment in accepting the check at all, and because they feared retaliation. During the investigation, Respondent called Mr. Arden and made statements regarding her sister's involvement with a "gang" that might result in harm to him. Mr. Arden interpreted these statements as threats of harm.

3. Respondent's Misconduct Was Established by a Preponderance of the Evidence

The evidence established that Respondent gave Mrs. Bruner's check, without Mrs. Bruner's permission or knowledge, as collateral for repairs on Respondent's car. Steve Arden identified Respondent as the person who gave him the check. Respondent admitted to having her car repaired at Arden's Garage in 1994, which supports Mr. Arden's claim he recognized Respondent and her vehicle in March 1995. His familiarity with Respondent and her vehicle undermine Respondent theory that Mr. Arden was duped by someone impersonating Respondent. As to Respondent's alternate theory that Mr. Arden was part of the conspiracy, she did not explain why a conspirator would wait two months to cash the check, deposit half the proceeds back into Mrs. Bruner's account, and write Mrs. Bruner a note explaining why he cashed the check.

Respondent argued HPNC's owner, who would give her salary advances, concocted the conspiracy to have her wrongfully identified as the person who left Mrs. Bruner's check at Arden's garage. A conspirator would have had to gain access to Mrs. Bruner's checkbook, find someone to impersonate Respondent, obtain a 1988 Lincoln, take that vehicle to Arden's garage, convince Steve Arden to take the check, pay him three hundred dollars cash, then communicate regularly with Mr. Arden over the course of two months until Arden cashed the check. Mr. Arden was a credible witness. His testimony was corroborated by documentary evidence in the form of Mrs. Bruner's check, the bank deposit slip, and his explanatory note to Mrs. Bruner. Respondent's conspiracy theory was not supported by credible evidence.

While Respondent may be correct in her belief that HPNC management wished to retaliate against her, there is no credible evidence that HPNC used the check forgery to do so. Respondent was the obvious culprit in the misappropriation of the check. She had access to Mrs. Bruner's checkbook and a need to use one of the checks to have her car repaired. Respondent's contradictory arguments about the willingness of HPNC's owner to lend her money and conspire against her indicate Respondent is willing to say anything to avoid blame. Staff's evidence proved by a preponderance of the evidence that Respondent misappropriated a patient's property. To do so, Respondent violated the trust placed in her by her employer and the patient. The Administrative Law Judge agrees with Staff's recommendation that Respondent's license be revoked.
